

Yeatts Inc. is still the best decision.

With all the big retail chains renting equipment such as dehumidifiers and carpet cleaning extractors, one might believe cleaning fabrics or performing water damage restoration is something you do on a whim. Even “professionals” in the fabric cleaning industry rent their equipment from big retail chains. There are many precautions to consider before renting carpet cleaning extractors instead of hiring an industry leader such as Yeatts Inc. Obviously, the quality of equipment available from a retail chain versus equipment used by a professional company isn't even comparable. For instance the heat, cleaning solutions, and vacuum performance in the best carpet cleaning extractor available for rent, wouldn't be on the radar with the cleaning solutions or industrial fabric cleaning equipment used or made by our company. Another precaution is the maintenance of the carpet cleaning extractors available to rent from the retail chain. For one example, we clean our filters often, daily. The filters collect all the hair, hard sand and soil particles, and other debris. Simultaneously the dirty waste water, rinsed and vacuumed out of the fabrics, passes through the filters and enters the recovery tank. Does the customer or store employee clean the equipment returned to the store and how well? Consider the cost of hiring a professional company to clean your carpets or upholstery to renting a carpet cleaning extractor. Also, you'll need to purchase the cleaning solutions. It will take time to clean a large basement, steps, or sofa using any type of equipment.

Are you about to purchase fine fabric upholstery?

Cleaning fine fabric upholstery is quite an endeavor for any Master Cleaner. Any upholstery fabric is composed of many various fibers. However, with fine fabric upholstery it's silk, cotton, wool, or linen. Any fine fabric covering upholstery is almost paper-thin. Thus any stain that is visible on the surface is also more than likely under the bottom of the fabric facing the batting. Fine fabric upholstery batting is usually composed of natural fibers, complicating the task of removing stains and odor. To really remedy the stain or odor, wet cleaning is the best option. However this creates obstacles to avoid like dye migration. Dry cleaning, although futile, is the last option. Always contact Yeatts Inc. for advice.
